Danny,

We're setting up a call to discuss options for optimizing performance, which is good to have even if these slowness reports don't prove out.

Eric and Janine,

David Gray and Rusty Harris-Bishop expressed slowness (both copied on this email). David is en route to Durango now. They'll be in the PIO area (not sure what the layout is there in the JIC).

I can't recreate the slowness on any device I've tested. It seems very responsive to me (and others).

Harvey mentioned moving the site to the NCC at one point and looking at performance; which is why when I heard someone was having any issue at all I elevated to this group to explore possibilities.

Harvey is it may be possible for us to talk with ESRI through the EPA (instead of Weston Technical Customer Service) to discuss these things? Raj I think would really like to get on the phone with someone directly at ESRI or would we have to go through EPA ESRI support first?

Thanks for the feedback, we are monitoring things and putting together a list of options of optimizing performance as the need arises so we are ready. We will share with this group once we do some more due diligence and analysis.

Yes, I don't see the slowness either. Just tested on my personal Android phone and my EPA Windows phone and the viewer loaded fast and was very responsive.

I said the same thing. It's a PAD out there (I'll find out if he's with you so he can connect up with you directly)

We have tested on multiple browsers and Operating Systems. Do you have any additional info about the devices?

Hey Harvey and Eric,

We've received feedback that the interactive map is loading slowly on some devices.

I recall a discussion around methods/hosting that would improve load time etc.

Is that transition effort underway? Or there other approaches we can pursue?
